“Master, you gave me five talents. See, I have made five more.’ His master said to him, ‘Well done, my good and faithful servant. Since you were faithful in small matters, I will give you great responsibilities. Come, share your master’s joy.’”

Rummage Sale News

A big THANK YOU to all who donated, purchased, displayed, and priced items as well as those who cleaned up after the rummage sale. It was a Big success because of You! It was unbelievable the amount of items that were brought in. We started on Wednesday right after school to put out all the treasures. With all of the help we had, we were able to put all the items onto their designated table. Thursday, a team of us started at 8:00am to price and organize the tables so people could shop with ease. Friday morning we had people waiting at the door to begin their shopping and on Saturday we had many people for the Bag Sale. We earned $1,902.00 which will go toward offsetting the school's technology and textbooks budget. Again Thank You for all of your support and help. We couldn't have done it without you. Luann & Janet

33rd Sunday in Ordinary Time

We all know what money is, as long as we don't think about it too much. After all, most people get a salary that they earn by putting in time on a job. It is possible to divide those earnings by the time put in, and come up with an hourly rate. But for the most part, money is intangible. There is no concrete item (gold, diamonds, even manufactured goods) that equals the value of all the money in the world. Our IRAs, 401(k)s, and pension funds earn money without making/mining/producing anything. Money is created, and those who have it are very happy about it.

We could read today's Gospel parable as an endorsement by Jesus of investment banking. But that's not really what the story is about. This week's Gospel is a story about what the community must do while its members await the return of the Lord. Last week's story encouraged Christians to be prepared because we don't know when the Lord will come back. This week's parable highlights the nature of that waiting. Christians don't just sit around waiting for Jesus to come back. Rather, we use the gifts and talents that are ours to transform the world.

But unlike the creation of money by those who develop complicated investment schemes and high-risk financial products, the Christian invests in the world using the gifts and talents given to him or her by the Master. This perspective is fundamentally different from that of investment banking. Rather than seeking the greatest return for oneself, a Christian understands that everything is a gift from the Creator. He or she then proceeds to use what has been given to further the development of humankind. Fifty years ago, Pope John XXIII issued his great encyclical Mater et Magistra on Christianity and social progress. In it he insisted that our task is "to humanize and to Christianize this modern civilization of ours." That is indeed a worthy investment!
